Rotary Serves Seniors Thanksgiving at Sagebrush Cantina

Calabasas City Councilmember Ed Albrecht helped out.

Seniors enjoyed dinner... and dancing!

For 34 years the Rotary Club of Calabasas has been serving up a Thanksgiving luncheon for seniors at the Sagebrush Cantina.

The guests were bused in from valley senior centers, assisted living facilities and retirement homes.

The free meal was prepared by Cantina staff. It was served by volunteers from various Rotary clubs, local residents, Scouts and more.

They all gave up their own holiday to bring Thanksgiving to those who, without this event, may not have had one.

This year turkeys were donated by Rotary members, community members, and the Rotary Club of Woodland Hills. Pies were donated by parishioners of St. Bernardine's parish. The buses were underwritten by Councilman John Lee and Supervisor Lindsay Horvath.

Thanks to Rotary's motto of "Service Above Self" over 600 seniors enjoyed a meal on Thanksgiving Day, who may not have had a holiday without the Rotary and Sagebrush Cantina's efforts.

Sagebrush Cantina owner Donal Tavey, above right, and GM Mario Romero were gracious hosts.

Local Scout troops welcomed the guests.

It takes a lot of pie to feed 600!

VIEWPOINT

• I saw a bumper sticker that said, "I'm a veterinarian therefore I can drive like an animal." I never realized there were so many proctologists are on the road.

• Jay Leno said that according to a new survey, women say they feel more comfortable undressing in front of men than they do undressing in front of other women. They say that women are too judgmental, where, of course, men are just grateful.

• Didja' hear about Ralph? He had several children for the deduction only to discover, too late, how taxing they could be.

•According to statistics, last year over 17 million American families paid a lot of money for things that looked funny and didn't work. Seven million were antiques, the rest were college students.

• Max Turrell likes the story of the grandmother who always sent checks to her grandchildren at the holidays. They seldom called her to acknowledge the checks. So she decided this year not to sign the checks so they had to call and come to see her for a signature.

• G.K. Chesteron's view of journalism is "journalism largely consists of saying 'Franklin Jones is dead' to people who never knew Franklin Jones was alive!"

• Here's a newspaper joke proving we can take a hit. A cannibal chief had captured a man near his camp and said to him, "What is your profession?" The man replied, "I was editor of my weekly newspaper." "Good," smiled the cannibal. "Tomorrow you will be editor-in-chief."

Golden Rooster Awards Screenings at the Chinese American Film Festival Brings the Pinnacle of Chinese Filmmaking to Hollywood

In celebration of the 45th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between China and the U.S., the Chinese Filmmakers Association (CFA) and the organizing committee of the Chinese American Film Festival (CAFF) co-hosted the "Golden Rooster Awards Screenings" at the 20th Chinese American Film Festival.

The Golden Rooster Screenings Showcase highlighted films nominated for the 37th Golden Rooster Awards, and the event was hosted with the intent to enhance the international impact of the Golden Rooster Award and create meaningful connections between Chinese and American films and their makers.

The Golden Rooster Awards Showcase was hosted recently at the Fowler Museum within the University of California, Los Angeles. The event was attended by Chinese American Film Festival Chairman James Su, Cultural Counselor of the Chinese Consulate General in Los Angeles Taiyu Wang, U.S. Representative Judy Chu, Former State Assemblymen and Board Member of the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board Mike Eng, Co-Chairman of the Chinese American Film Festival and Oscar-winner Andrew Morgan, and CAFF Committee Member and Chairman of the Foreign Task Force of the Writers Guild of America West Committee Bob Underwood, among other guests from the Chinese and U.S. film industry.

Chairman Su comments, "As the Chinese American Film Festival marks its 20th anniversary, creating a promotional activity in the world's movie city, Hollywood, where we join hands with the China Film Association becomes all the more significant. We hope to continue to collaborate with CFA in the future and use our shared passion for film and TV to bridge between China and the United States and deepen friendships between the Chinese and American people."

CAFF presented "Little Golden Angel Awards" to long-time supports of the festival.

Taiyu Wang, Cultural Counselor of the Chinese Consulate General in Los Angeles echoed that the Golden Rooster Awards brings the Chinese and American people closer together. According to Wang, "the Chinese American Film Festival has introduced many of the latest and most influential films for American audiences to view and enjoy."

Preceding Wang's welcoming remarks, Deputy Secretary General of the China Film Association Cao Jun introduced the Golden Rooster Awards to the audience and invited international filmmakers to participate in the Golden Rooster Awards and Golden Rooster and Hundred Flowers Film Festival.

Honorable American politicians U.S. Representative Judy Chu and California State Assemblyman Mike Fong shared words of support at the showcase. According to Chu, her hope is that films will be able to enhance the understanding between the two countries and strengthen cultural exchanges and civil friendship. Chu also encourages both Chinese and American filmmakers to continue to create more stellar film and television works for the global audience.

Golden Rooster Awards Showcase was followed up with six screenings of films that were nominated for the 37th Golden Rooster Awards at the Regal Edwards Alhambra Renaissance Theater between November 10 to 12.

The films screened included Pegasus 2, Endless Journey, G for Gap, Gone With the Boat, Snow Leopard,and The Yangtze River.

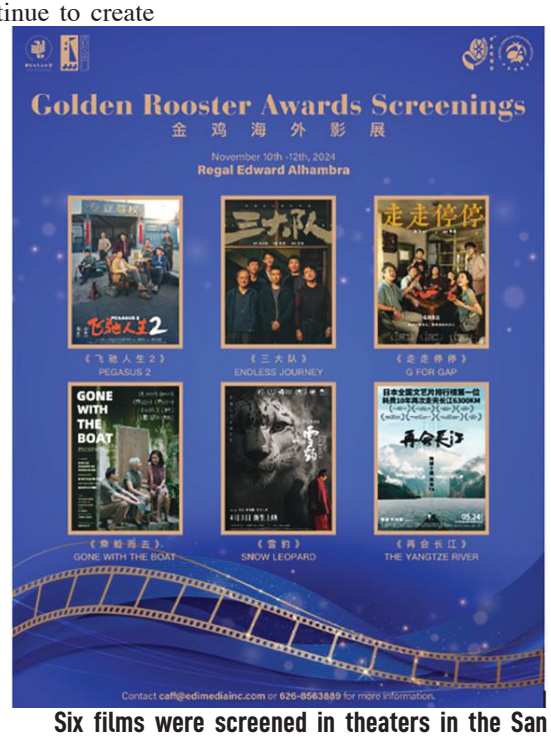
The Golden Rooster Angel Awards Showcase is a branded event of the Chinese Filmmakers Association for Foreign Exchange, which aims to use film as a medium to show the charm of Chinese culture and art to the world and deepen the exchange and mutual understanding between Chinese and foreign civilizations.

While similar events have been hosted in Italy, Greece, Belarus and other countries over the years, this is the first time they have hosted an outreach event in the States, signifying their hopes of improving relations between the two nations.

As the seal of approval for quality filmmaking in mainland China, the organizing committee of the Chinese American Film Festival welcomed the Golden Rooster Awards to Hollywood to share a piece of Chinese cinematic history with American audiences.



Six films were screened in theaters in the San Gabriel Valley in the days preceding the showcase.

In the Spirit of the Season the Rams Give Back

The Los Angeles Rams have teamed up with community partners to kick off their annual "Season of Giving."

They began the season at the West Valley Food Pantry's Thanksgiving Distribution, hosting Ramsgiving at the team's practice facility.

They also joined the City of Inglewood's 10th annual Turkey Giveaway and partnered with L.A. Care Health Plan for a Holiday Extravaganza at the field the team installed at the Nickerson Gardens housing development in September.

The Rams Season of Giving campaign is an initiative to give back to the L.A. community. Since 2018, Rams players, cheerleaders, mascot Rampage and front office staff have participated in annual Community Blitz and Season of Giving days of service that have helped address food insecurity, provide gifts to those in need and uplift this community during the holiday season.

The event at the West Valley Food Pantry included a Thanksgiving mobile produce and grocery distribution to serve nearly 150 families. Volunteers participated in food bagging, distribution and family greeting.

The West Valley Food Pantry is dedicated to ending food insecurity in the West Valley. The organization operates a drive-through food pantry five days a week, distributing over 15,000 pounds of food weekly to more than 800 households, along with a senior delivery program that reaches 600 seniors monthly. To address other essential needs, they provide supportive services like infant supplies, school supplies and hygiene products. They host community events including vaccination and mobile pet clinics.

Piece of the Past: Hangman's Tree Cafe

By James R. Bozajian

While death is not commonly used to attract patrons to restaurants, one notable exception from our past was a whimsical eatery named, "Hangman's Tree Café." This establishment's logo was an image of the Valley Oak (Quercus Lobata) that once existed in the heart of Old Town Calabasas and was known colloquially as the "Calabasas Hanging Tree" (despite the fact that there is scant historical evidence to support the legend that it was ever employed for such purposes).

Though actually located a few miles east of Calabasas in Tarzana, Hangman's Tree Café was inspired by the Calabasas Hanging Tree. The restaurant was in operation for two decades starting in the 1940s at 18671 Ventura Boulevard. (It was later revived for a short span in the 1970s, during which time I visited there as a child.) The decor was reminiscent of the American Old West.

As its proprietors explained long ago: "In choosing the name of Hangman's Tree we are attempting to perpetuate and commemorate a famous tree in Calabasas - genuine old pioneer spot which lies just a few miles up the road. This place was once infested with the most notorious band of outlaws and cattle-rustlers in the State of California and many of them stretched the rope on a limb of Hangman's Tree, Calabasas. The tree still stands."

Dangling outside from a nearby tree was a life-sized, straw-stuffed dummy dubbed, "Reseda Red." This drew vociferous complaints from the Tarzana Chamber of Commerce, which posited that the scene projected an unflattering image of the community. So heated did the dispute over the presence of Reseda Red become, that in 1945 the Chamber formally petitioned the State of California to rescind Hangman's Tree Cafe's liquor license. But the effort proved unsuccessful, and Reseda Red remained.

Advertising for Hangman's Tree Café was punctuated by the kind of dark, morbid, and self-deprecating humor not normally associated with enterprise, including a tag-line which read: "Hangman's Tree Café. Where you, too, should hang out." Or another which boasted: "Hangman's Tree Café. The rendezvous for those who enjoy lousy food."

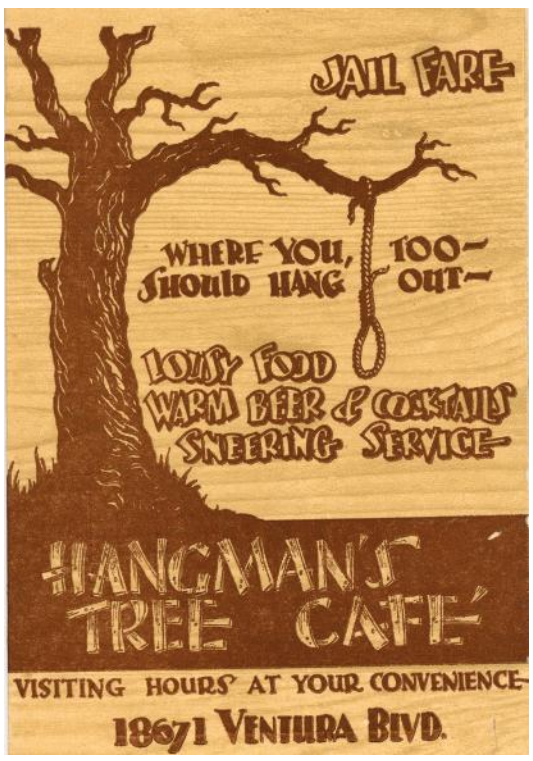
Though actually located a few miles east of Calabasas in Tarzana, Hangman's Tree Café was inspired by the Calabasas Hanging Tree.

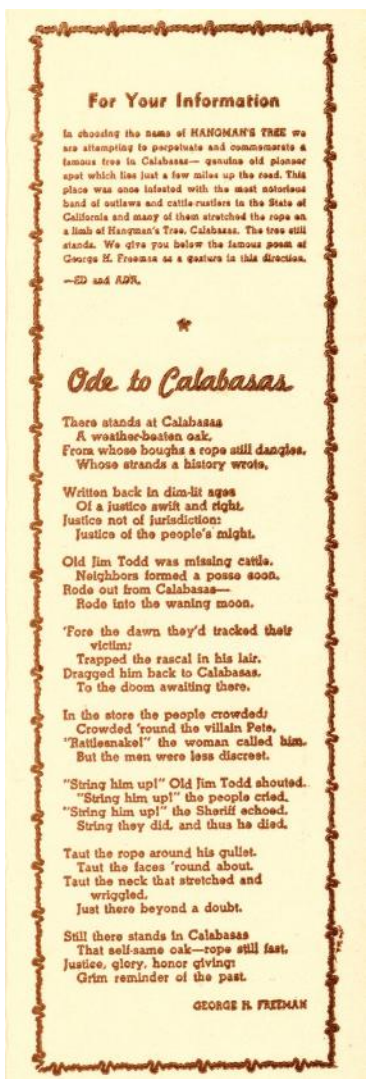
The menu was billed as "jail fare" that consisted of "lousy food," "warm beer and cocktails" and "sneering service." Customers were admonished: "Don't be a glutton! Leave a little on the plate. Remember, all 'left-overs' are used in our Sunday Hash for 'First-time Losers.'" The wine list was described as "seasoning for the town's most tasteless food." In 1955, the owners announced that "much to everyone's regret," a second Hangman's Tree Café was opening in Van Nuys.

Perhaps most intriguing of all was an original poem used to promote Hangman's Tree Café (and printed within its menus) entitled, "Ode to Calabasas." The grim poetry relates the (fictional) story of an execution carried out by utilizing the Old Town Calabasas Hanging Tree. Not exactly light reading during mealtime.

All of which is to say that this was one weird place to eat, the likes of which are not to be found in these parts today.

James R. Bozajian has served on the Calabasas City Council since 1997 and is a member of the Calabasas Las Virgenes Historical Society. He can be reached at jbozajian@cityofcalabasas.com.





For Your Information

In choosing the name of HANGMAN'S TREE we are attempting to perpetuate and commemorate a famous tree in Calabasas— genuine old pioneer spot which lies just a few miles up the road. This place was once infested with the most notorious band of outlaws and cattle-rustlers in the State of California and many of them stretched the rope on a limb of Hangman's Tree, Calabasas. The tree still stands. We give you below the famous poem of George H. Freeman as a gesture in this direction.

—ED and ADR.

Ode to Calabasas

There stands at Calabasas
A weather-beaten oak,
From whose boughs a rope still dangles,
Whose strands a history wrote.

Written back in dim-lit ages
Of a justice swift and right,
Justice not of jurisdiction:
Justice of the people's might.

Old Jim Todd was missing cattle.
Neighbors formed a posse soon.
Rode out from Calabasas—
Rode into the waning moon.

'Fore the dawn they'd tracked their victim;
Trapped the rascal in his lair.
Dragged him back to Calabasas.
To the doom awaiting there.

In the store the people crowded;
Crowded 'round the villain Pete.
"Rattlesnake!" the woman called him.
But the men were less discreet.

"String him up!" Old Jim Todd shouted.
"String him up!" the people cried.
"String him up!" the Sheriff echoed.
String they did, and thus he died.

Taut the rope around his gullet.
Taut the faces 'round about.
Taut the neck that stretched and wriggled.
Just there beyond a doubt.

Still there stands in Calabasas
That self-same oak—rope still fast,
Justice, glory, honor giving;
Grim reminder of the past.
