VIEWPOINT

English Channel

By Rodger Sterling

English Channel offers the best of the late editor Rodger Sterling's columns that ran continuously in the local papers since 1968.

• We're not the only ones with bloopers! Love these real items from church bulletins - thank God for church ladies with typewriters:

- The sermon this morning will be "Jesus walks on the water." The sermon tonight: "Searching for Jesus."

- Don't forget Saturday's rummage sale. It's a chance to get rid of those things not worth keeping around the house. Bring your husbands.

- And our favorite: Don't let worry kill you off; let the Church help.

• Another religious joke. The preacher came to call on one of his delinquent members one day. The preacher said at his age he should be attending church and thinking of the hereafter. Replied the older man, "Oh, I do all the time. No matter where I am, in the garage, upstairs, in the yard...I ask myself, "Now what am I here after?"

• Want to know where the word gossip originated? No, not with your neighbor! It started in the old days when politicians would send their aides into bars to "to go sip there to find out what was on the minds of voters. The two words "go sip" were eventually combined when referring to local opinion, and thus we got the word "gossip."

• Optimism is what makes a tea kettle sing, even though it's up to its neck in hot water.

• Y'know what the top cancer fighting foods are: broccoli, tomatoes, spinach, oranges, garlic, apples, soybeans, carrots and green tea.

Celebrating Life and Heritage: Canoga Park Día de los Muertos Festival

By Jay Ross

In the heart of Canoga Park, a vibrant celebration of life and cultural heritage unfolds annually, bringing together a community to honor the traditions of Día de los Muertos.

This year, the festival took place on Sunday, November 3, transforming Sherman Way into a colorful boulevard of art, music and history.

The day commenced with the beats of Aztec drums as dancers adorned in beautiful costumes performed at the opening ceremony. Their movements set the tone for the day's festivities.

Soon after, at the main stage, a showcase of cultural diversity, featuring performances that ranged from the elegant Ballet Folklorico to the soulful rhythms of Latin Jazz and the energetic beats of Rock in Spanish. Each performance was a testament to the richness of Latino culture and its influence on the arts.

Artistic expression was not confined to the stage. The CSUN Pavilion, the ACE tent, and Boys & Girls Club booths offered art activities that engaged attendees of all ages. From painting and sculpture to crafts, these interactive spaces provided a hands-on experience of the festival's artistic spirit.

At 12:30 pm, a procession commenced on the Main Stage to Owensmouth. It was a poignant moment, as participants carried symbols and offerings in memory of loved ones, their faces painted with the iconic makeup, with the festival's core message of remembering and celebrating the departed.

The Altars Tent was a focal point of reflection and remembrance, with every space thoughtfully decorated with offerings, photographs, and mementos. The fully booked tent was a clear indication of the community's engagement and reverence for this tradition.

The Canoga Park Neighborhood Council's Car Show added to the day, ending in an award ceremony that celebrated the style of classic and custom vehicles.

Councilman Bob Blumenfield presented a certificate to Norma Solis, above left, an advocate and volunteer at Dia de Los Muertos for 24 years.

The Día de los Muertos Festival is more than just an event; it's where people came together with cultural pride and familial bonds. It's a day when the spirits of the past dance among the living, and the community embraced the beauty of life's cycle. Until next year, the memories of this festival will linger, much like the spirits it honors.

Ryan Vasquez, a sixth-grade science teacher at Sutter Middle School in Winnetka, makes climate change relatable for his students, most with roots in Central America and Mexico, by citing cultural experiences such as tortilla making over open flames (rather than using clean electric ovens) that often place the health and wellbeing of women – mothers and abuelas – their families, and the planet, at risk.

For many educators, like Vasquez, exposing students to STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art, and mathematics) careers is top of mind, and access to resources is key. This is why, on October 24, Vasquez's students, along with more than 400 middle school students from low-income communities in the San Fernando Valley, attended a Future Green Leaders Summit STEAM career and resource fair at Discovery Cube, an interactive science-based museum located in Sylmar.

Learning about energy resources that create a cleaner, greener planet.

"This summit is about putting our students in the place of most potential to choose careers in the green energy economy," said Emerald Cities Southern CA Curriculum Director, Francisco Parra Camacho, the summit's lead and a former educator. "Many students are not aware of the opportunities that are available to them as we transition to a greener, more sustainable future. We want them to begin to envision a future in this growing field for themselves and their communities," added Parra Camacho.

Held for the first time in the San Fernando Valley, the second annual event is presented by the County of Los Angeles through its Southern California Regional Energy Network's (SoCalREN) Workforce Education & Training Sector. SoCalREN, which is administered by the County and funded by state utility ratepayers through the California Public Utilities Commission, focuses on energy efficiency and environmental awareness programs.

During the interactive event, students learned about clean energy resources that reduce carbon emissions, create jobs, and efforts to create a cleaner, greener, healthier planet. They also engaged in a rap-style "Energy Battle Royale" performance featuring dynamic energy superhero characters. The out-of-this-world show encourages critical thinking about energy technologies and raises environmental awareness.

Students enjoy the "Energy Battle Royale" performance.

Students also saw STEAM exhibits, resource fair booths hosted by government and industry partners, as well as a Shark Lab presented by Cal State University Long Beach and featuring shark biology, physiology, and tracking technology.

Boy Scout Camp on Catalina Celebrates 100

Camp Emerald Bay, operated by the Western Los Angeles County Council of Scouting America, is celebrating 100 years as an ocean-focused camp on Catalina Island. During this time, the camp has hosted hundreds of thousands of youth. It currently serves 12,000 youths each year, with a goal of serving 20,000.

The site offers a marine science center dedicated to the island's singular habitat, scuba diving lessons, and an Outdoor Academy open to both public and private school students. The educational programs focus on natural history, leadership, and independence at Camp Emerald Bay, a Scouting America camp on the west side of Catalina Island.

"Camp Emerald Bay is a unique and magical place," said Lee Harrison, Scouting Executive and CEO of the Council. "It's the only island camp on the West Coast that isn't connected to the mainland by road, so it offers unparalleled access to nature and a kind of splendid isolation most kids – and many adults – never get to experience."

The camp was founded in 1925 to offer Los Angeles Boy Scouts (now Scouting America) access to marine adventure and a pristine location to learn skills like boating and swimming.

Scouting Council provides millions of dollars to help bring kids here whose parents can't afford it on their own. It's always amazing to see the looks on the faces of kids who are really experiencing the ocean for the first time.

Though it was temporarily shut down during World War II, since then it has grown steadily.

In 2004, the camp expanded its offerings by opening the Pennington Marine Science Center, which operates a 6,000-gallon seawater system to display local maritime plant and animal life. Camp staff and scientists from local universities use the facility to teach young people about oceanography and conservation.

The Science Center, with its popular touch tank, plays a key role in the Emerald Bay Outdoor Academy. Though local schools have long been welcome to use Camp Emerald Bay during the Scouts' off season, in 2021, the scouting council launched their own program and curriculum to provide children from all different socioeconomic backgrounds with the opportunity to learn about the environment and conservation on the island. Over the past three years, the program has grown by 5,000% to serve thousands of students each year.

"One of our most important goals of Camp Emerald Bay is to provide equal access to this incredible natural setting," Harrison said. "Our Scouting Council provides millions of dollars to help bring kids here whose parents can't afford it on their own. It's always amazing to see the looks on the faces of kids who are really experiencing the ocean for the first time."

Many of the children who get financial assistance who come to the camp are part of the Council's Outreach Program, targeted at youth in the San Fernando Valley. Between 2022 and 2024, the Western Los Angeles County Council provided more $1.5 million to help young people participate in programs at Camp Emerald Bay.

Over 70? No More DMV "Knowledge Tests"

Welcome news for those who dread the DMV's "knowledge test" when renewing their license.

The California Dept. of Motor Vehicles has announced that drivers aged 70 and over don't have to take the test to renew.

Up until September, drivers had to take the long written test (of which there are multiple versions) as part of their renewal after expiration. It was not a state law but a DMV requirement. The change is designed to improve customer service.

"We are removing the written knowledge test for drivers without traffic violations to streamline the process," said DMV Director Steve Gordon. "Fewer people will need to visit the DMV, allowing us to better serve those who must come in."

It's not a total hall pass. Drivers 70 and older must still complete a vision test and update their photo when renewing their license.

New drivers and those new to California still need to pass the written test - as do those with poor driving records or those involved in accidents.

Some may be able to take the DMV's e-Learning course as an alternative.

If you have two or more accidents in two years prior to your renewal, or three or more in three years, a DUI suspension or two or more violation points, you'll need to take the written knowledge tests.

It's not a hall pass. Drivers 70 and older must still complete a vision test and update their photo.

The National Safety Council reports that accidents actually lessen as drivers age, except for those 75 and older, who have the highest fatality rates in collisions.

Drivers will receive a written notice if a test is required. However, it may be waived during the in-office visit. It's best to start the renewal process early online.
