Sharing Food and Faith and Honoring First Responders

The Dawoodi Bohra Community of Los Angeles hosted a civic and interfaith Iftar gathering Tuesday evening at Ezzi Masjid, welcoming local first responders, elected representatives, educators, diplomats, and community leaders for an evening centered on unity, service, and shared American values.

The event marked the daily breaking of the fast during the holy month of Ramadan and brought together members of the Los Angeles Fire Department (LAFD), the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD), congressional representatives, and neighborhood partners.

Among the distinguished guests were LAFD Battalion Chief Joseph Lopez, LAFD Captain Sean Millett, LAPD Captain Rodolfo Lopez, and LAUSD Board Member Scott Schmerelson.

In his welcome remarks, community representative Adnan Hamid emphasized solidarity and the significance of the moment as the nation approaches its 250th anniversary.

"For two and a half centuries, America has been an extraordinary experiment — people of different faiths, cultures, and backgrounds striving to live together in freedom, dignity, and mutual respect," Hamid said. "Gatherings like this are a living expression of that promise." Hamid also noted the historical connection between Ramadan and American civic life, referencing President Thomas Jefferson's 1805 sunset meal at the White House for a Muslim diplomat — widely regarded as the first documented White House Iftar and an early example of religious inclusion.

Local public safety leaders acknowledged the strong partnership between their departments and the Dawoodi Bohra community, particularly in times of need.

The program began with a

Word on the Street

What price democracy?

At Starbucks yesterday the conversation centered on the jump in gas prices. We've all felt it. I paid $4.29 last week to fill up my tank. This week I paid $5.29 to top it off before hitting the road.

Oil is up over $100 a barrel now – for the first time since 2022. This is in direct response to the war in Iran, and the disruption in the Strait of Hormuz.

We all know freedom isn't free. I've written many times before about how blessed we are to live in this country, where we can speak freely, act freely and vote freely.

As I'm writing this editorial the Iranian women's soccer team is sequestered in Australia. The team stood at the ceremonies but refused to sing the Iranian national anthem. Five women have already sought asylum, and officials are frantically trying to remove the rest of the team from their hotel to safety. Their act of defiance could land them in jail back home – or worse.

So in light of that, what's $15 more a week for a bit to fight for what's right? To fight to change the oppressive regime in Iran? To fight for a more democratic, peaceful world?

We can choose to salute our flag. To sing our national anthem. To vote for who we want to lead. Or we can choose not to.

That's what living in this country gives us.

Not everyone is so lucky.

You can agree with the war. You can disagree with the war. That's your right as an American citizen.

But it's also my right to say suck it up. Stop sucking down your $6 lattes and complaining about the price at the pump.

That price is what's letting you sit around and complain openly and freely.

What the Winter Olympics Taught Us About Branding, Storytelling, and the Rise of Women's Sports

By Danrochelle D. Yumul

From the comeback story of Alyssa Liu to the determination of Lindsey Vonn, and the leadership of Hilary Knight and the United States women's national ice hockey team, this year's Winter Olympics revealed a shift in how sports brands are built. Performance alone no longer defines the strongest brands in athletics. Authenticity, narrative, and identity now take center stage.

Alyssa Liu's story illustrates how authenticity can become the core of a personal brand.

One of the defining Olympic stories came from Alyssa Liu, whose performance in women's figure skating captivated audiences around the world. Her success represented more than brilliance on the ice. Liu's journey back to elite competition after stepping away from the sport at a young age added emotional depth to her victory.

What made Liu particularly compelling from a branding standpoint was how she approached her career with openness and enthusiasm. Rather than presenting the image of a prodigy, she spoke candidly about rediscovering her joy in skating and prioritizing her own mental health and well-being. Liu's willingness to discuss her experiences honestly made her both relatable and memorable. Her story illustrates how authenticity can become the core of a personal brand.

While Liu's story highlighted joy and rediscovery, Lindsey Vonn's Olympic presence illustrated another important branding element: resilience.

Vonn has long been one of the most recognizable figures in alpine skiing, but her career has also been defined by injuries and comebacks. Even as she faced physical setbacks during the games, the narrative surrounding her remained one of determination. Audiences were watching a chapter in the career of an athlete who has spent years pushing the limits of what is physically possible.

Resilience stories carry immense storytelling power. They invite audiences to witness struggle, perseverance, and the emotional cost of elite performance. Vonn's continued presence on the Olympic stage reinforced the idea that a strong athletic brand is built through the ability to endure adversity in public view, even when things take a heartbreaking turn.

Individual athletes often dominate Olympic headlines, but the women's hockey tournament demonstrated the branding strength of team identity. Led by captain Hilary Knight, the United States women's national ice hockey team delivered one of the most compelling storylines of the games.

Knight's leadership and the team's collective determination highlighted shared identity rather than individual celebrity. Their story emphasized loyalty, sacrifice, and the pursuit of a common goal. When athletes compete under a banner larger than themselves, the emotional stakes intensify for fans. For audiences, these moments reinforce the idea that sports are ultimately about community. The success of the women's hockey team demonstrated how powerful a collective narrative can be.

Another striking element of this year's Olympics was the way athletes openly shared aspects of their personal lives and identities. Moments that once would have been treated as off-field distractions are now embraced as integral parts of the athlete's story.

For athletes like Eileen Gu, Chloe Kim, and Elana Meyers Taylor, personality is an extension of their public identity. Their openness allows fans to see them as people rather than distant competitors.

This shift reflects a broader change in how audiences engage with sports. Fans follow athletes for their perspectives, values, humor, and humanity. Social media has accelerated this transformation, turning athletes into storytellers of their own experiences. Women athletes have embraced this more expansive approach to personal branding, building connections with fans beyond the playing field.

The Winter Olympics made one thing unmistakably clear: female athletes are on the rise, and they are shaping the future of sports branding. Their brands are their stories. And their stories resonate because they reflect real, honest-to-goodness human experiences, and not carefully scripted narratives.

Rise in ACL Tears in Young Female Athletes

Lindsay Vonn made headlines when she decided to continue her plans of competing in the Olympics despite suffering from a torn ACL. While the spotlight was on the Olympian, surgeons have been warning that this injury is perhaps the biggest health issue they are currently seeing in youth sports, outside of concussions.

Females are three to six times more likely to suffer from a torn ACL than males, with studies showing an increase of 59% in reconstruction procedures for girls aged 13 to 17.

An anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) is a fibrous band of tissue in the knee that connects the thighbone to the shinbone. Most injuries stem not from an intense collision, but rather a hard pivot or hard stop when the knee has incredible force put upon it that it just can't handle. It happens quickly and painfully.

The reason more girls seem to suffer from ACL tears is possibly due to anatomical and hormonal differences not prevalent in boys. Wider hips can often create an inward knee tilt and estrogen leads to more ligament laxity.

The reason for increasing ACL tears in high school athletes is often a combination of factors: playing year-round and increased pressure on the knee, not enough health resources that athletes at collegiate levels have and slacking on strengthening routines.

However, prevention is possible if more attention is put into warm-ups before play and targeted moves to strengthen the area. A 20-minute warm-up called FIFA 11+ has shown it can cut ACL tears by up to 80% and is available for free on YouTube or printed out as a reference exercise sheet.

While soccer is typically the sport where young athletes experience the most ACL issues, any young athlete can benefit from the training to build a stronger muscle and prevent injuries.n

Hot Property Party Planner's Calabasas Home

Event planner and lifestyle expert David Tutera has put his Country Ridge home in Calabasas on the market. Tutera has planned parties for such celebs as Elton John, Jennifer Lopez and Matthew McConaughey.

His seven-bedroom manse reflects his level of design, with a bedroom with gold-textured wallpaper and a floral-print laundry room.

The black and white chef's kitchen offers Wolf, Subzero and ASKO appliances, several ovens, a secondary catering kitchen and butler's pantry.

There are five bedrooms upstairs, and the primary suite has a balcony overlooking the hills outside. The primary bath boasts a steam shower, soaking tub and separate spa area with a sauna.

The outdoor entertaining space includes a resort-style pool and spa, outdoor lounge with a fire pit and outdoor kitchen and BBQ pavilion. A baby-blue lounge off the family room is surrounding by accordion doors that turn the space into a covered patio.

The home, only one of seven in the Country Ridge neighborhood, is offered at $5.9 million by James Ruhmel and Paige Gordon of Corcoran Icon Properties.

SFV Audubon Society to Lead Bird Walk at Malibu Creek State Park

The San Fernando Valley Audubon Society will lead a leisurely stroll along Malibu Creek, its oak and sycamore woodlands set amidst a stunning backdrop of chaparral-covered slopes and rocky buttes. Birds, deer, bobcat, butterflies, reptiles and, in season, a bewildering array of wildflowers can be found in this jewel of the Santa Monica Mountains, now mostly recovered from the devastating Woolsey fire.

The focus will be on finding and identifying many of the over 200 species of birds that have been recorded here. You can expect to see 30 to 50 species during these three- to four-hour walks, depending on the season. Common resident species include acorn woodpecker, oak titmouse, California quail, and white-breasted nuthatch, and spring brings us black-headed grosbeak, blue grosbeak, and lazuli buntings.

Meet at the main lot, which is the second (lower) day-use parking lot per the Google map. Entrance to the park is on the west side of Las Virgenes Road, just south of Mulholland Hwy. Entrance fee is $12 per car. Walks will be cancelled in the event of rain. If you're unsure whether a walk is taking place, please contact your walk leaders at (747) 237-3720.

The building at 20600 Ventura will be converted.

Woodland Hills Apartment Building Converting Offices to Housing

The Boulevard Apartments at 20600 Ventura Blvd. was designed as work/live units, with office space and retail on the ground floor and apartments on higher floors.

As the commercial market struggles post-COVID, property owners have looked to housing as an alternative plan for space.

This can be seen locally also at The Commons of Calabasas, where the movie theatre is being replaced with apartment housing.

The Los Angeles City Planning Commission has recently approved a proposal from the owners of The Boulevard Apartments, Acacia Capital, to add five additional housing units in place of vacant retail on the building's ground floor.

The five-story structure currently features 123 apartments on its upper floors.

Sherman Oaks Landscaping

I started my own business back in 1967 by going around to neighbors houses when I was seven years old and asking them if they needed their lawn cut or their leaves cleaned up. I started a gardening route in junior high and I hired many of my friends to assist me throughout the years. In 1985 I was cited for contracting without a license and they said I could either pay a $2500 fine or get my contractors license, so I got my license. In 1994 we had earthquake in Northridge California, lots of walls fell down and I got in trouble again for contracting without a masonry license, so I went and got the masonry license. Now I have a C 27 and a C 29. I have a wonderful crew that's been with me over 20 years, I'm good to them and they're good to me. I have nothing but compliments about the way my crew shows respect to our clients. I can do complete landscaping jobs, hard scape, waterfalls, Barbecues, fire pits, Koi ponds, Lawn, Sprinklers, Synthetic grass and everything in between.

Dawood Bohra Celebrates Iftar With Community

recitation from the Holy Qur'an, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance led by community youth. Guests then proceeded to the masjid for sunset prayers before returning for a traditional communal dinner served in the Dawoodi Bohra custom of dining around a shared platter known as a thaal, symbolizing unity and fellowship.

Throughout the evening, speakers recognized the dedication of local first responders and civic leaders.

"Your presence here reflects the deep bond between our community and the institutions that safeguard our society," Hamid said. "Your service represents solidarity in action."

A special message from His Holiness Syedna Mufaddal Saifuddin, the spiritual leader of the Dawoodi Bohra community worldwide, was read during the program.

The evening also included a warm welcome back to Behlul Hashimi, President of the Dawoodi Bohra Community of Los Angeles and official nominee overseeing Dawoodi Bohra communities across North America.

Community members acknowledged his decades of leadership and outreach efforts, including initiatives such as Project RISE, through which the community was nominated by Assemblymember Jesse Gabriel as California Nonprofit of the Year for 2025.

During the evening, local public safety leaders acknowledged the strong partnership between their departments and the Dawoodi Bohra community, particularly in times of need.

"After last year's wildfires, your community supported Station 105 with much-needed brush equipment and tools," said LAFD Captain Sean Millett. "On behalf of the fire station, we truly appreciate that support. This masjid is truly a hidden jewel in our community. I'm genuinely impressed by the culture here and by how warm and welcoming everyone has been."

LAPD Captain Rodolfo Lopez also emphasized the longstanding relationship between the department and the community.

"What we share is true camaraderie and partnership," Captain Lopez said. "We cherish this relationship. Your community has always been generous in its support — including providing two flat-top barbecue grills so we could feed our officers — very well, I might add — and promote wellness within our command. Thank you for being our friends."

Organizers credited the success of the event to the efforts of numerous volunteers, noting that the gathering reflected the community's long-standing commitment to service, interfaith engagement, and partnership with local institutions.

The Dawoodi Bohra community in Los Angeles remains active in charitable initiatives, educational outreach, and civic engagement, continuing to build relationships across faiths and professions throughout the region.
