News in Brief

Some Independent Outlets May Stay Open at Topanga Social

Based on an EDD WARN notice, Valley News Group reported last week that Topanga Social at Westfield mall was closing. Topanga Social was a joint venture between Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield and Earl Enterprises, which ran the actual food operations. The WARN notice said that 131 people would be laid off as of April 14. The food outlets operated by Earl Enterprises will in fact, be closing, however, according to Westfield Senior General Manager Logan Abbene, hopefully five independent operators will stay open. "We hope that the Earl operators will stay on," said Abbene. "In addition to the one central kitchen maintained by Earl, each outlet was built with its own individual kitchen. We know that there will be a transition period while Westfield considers what plans to take with Topanga Social."

Viewpoint Teacher Charged With Child Molestation

Travis Takeshi Shojinaga, a teacher at Viewpoint School, has been charged with possession of child sexual abuse material and child molestation of multiple female students. Shojinaga, who taught at the school for 10 years, allegedly took secret and intimate photographs of at least four students at Viewpoint School in Calabasas. He was arrested on campus on February 25 after an 11-year-old student reported that he was secretly taking inappropriate photographs of female students. "The accusations in this case are disgusting and deliberate violations of children's safety, dignity and rights," District Attorney Nathan J. Hochman said. "We believe there may be more victims and encourage anyone with information to call law enforcement." If convicted, Shojinaga faces seven years in state prison and will have to register as a sex offender.

The Wall That Heals Coming to Valley

The Wall that Heals, the three-quarter scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial and accompanying Mobile Education Center, is coming to Woodland Hills at Pierce College, March 9 through 22.

In November 1996, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (VVMF) introduced a mobile version of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. This replica, unveiled on Veterans Day, was created to bring the memorial's powerful message to communities across America. Since its first tour, The Wall That Heals has visited hundreds of locations, allowing millions to connect with its enduring legacy.

This powerful exhibit honors the more than 58,000 service members whose names are etched on the wall, while providing a place of reflection, healing and education for veterans, families and the community.

The Wall That Heals exhibit features a three-quarter scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. The replica is 375 feet in length and stands 7.5 feet high at its tallest point.

Like the original memorial, The Wall That Heals is erected in a chevron-shape and visitors can do name rubbings of individual service members' names on the wall. The replica is constructed of Avonite, a synthetic granite, and its 140 numbered panels are supported by an aluminum frame. Machine engraving of the 58,281 names along with modern LED lighting provide readability of The Wall day and night.

As on the wall, the names on The Wall That Heals are listed by day of casualty. Beginning at the center/apex, the names start on the east wall (right-hand side) working their way out to the end of that wing, picking up again at the far end of the west wall (left-hand side) and working their way back in to the center/apex, joining the beginning and end of the conflict at the center.

Admission is free and open to the public. All are encouraged to attend.

No More Parades? What Los Angeles is About to Lose

By Tim Gaspar

For decades, Los Angeles neighborhoods have marked the calendar not by press conferences or budget hearings, but by parades.

Memorial Day in Canoga Park. Opening Day for Sunrise Little League. The Chatsworth Christmas Parade. These events are not spectacles. They are rituals, organized by volunteers, funded by bake sales and sponsorships, and sustained by people who believe that gathering in the street with neighbors still matters.

That tradition is now at risk.

A few months ago, the Canoga Park Memorial Day Parade, a decades-old event, volunteer committee received a $37,000 bill from the City of Los Angeles. No warning. No prior estimate. No precedent. The charge, we were told, covered Department of Transportation personnel and overtime.

Just weeks ago, Sunrise Little League called me in a panic. Their annual opening day parade, the same one they've held for more than 20 years along Victory Boulevard early on a Saturday morning, was suddenly quoted a $12,000 cost from the city. They were told this, again, was for DOT staffing.

I've since learned that the Chatsworth Christmas Parade was hit with a similar surprise bill in December.

These charges are new. They were not part of past planning. They were not disclosed in advance. And they are not manageable for volunteer organizations.

In the case of the Memorial Day Parade, Councilmember Bob Blumenfield personally covered the cost because it was such a shock and because the event mattered to the community. But that kind of last-minute intervention is not a solution, and it is certainly not scalable across Los Angeles.

If this policy continues, the result is simple and unavoidable: there will be no parades. No street fairs. No community celebrations. Not because Angelenos stopped caring, but because they are being priced out of civic life.

The city's explanation is that these fees reflect staffing costs and overtime driven by Los Angeles' current financial situation. That explanation may satisfy an internal spreadsheet, but it doesn't answer the fundamental question: why are community organizations being asked to pay for the city's budget failures?

These parades are not commercial ventures. They are not profit-making events. They are expressions of civic pride, remembrance, and neighborhood identity. Memorial Day parades honor those who gave their lives for this country. Little League parades celebrate kids and families. Holiday parades bring together communities that rarely agree on much else.

Memorial Day Canoga Park.
Opening Day for Sunrise Little League.
Chatsworth Christmas Parade.
All hit with huge surprise bills from the city.

Treating them like discretionary luxuries, or worse, like nuisances that need to be "managed," misses their value entirely.

What makes this especially troubling is how quietly it is happening. These costs are not debated publicly. They are not phased in. They arrive after the fact or weeks before an event, leaving organizers with no real choices. Pay up, scramble for emergency funds, or cancel.

That is not a partnership. That is a shake-down.

Los Angeles routinely speaks about equity, inclusion, and community engagement. But policies like this do the opposite. Wealthy neighborhoods and well-funded organizations may be able to absorb these fees. Most cannot. The result is a city where only communities with deep pockets can celebrate together in public space.

We should be asking why the city is charging volunteer groups for basic public services that exist to support public gatherings. We should be asking whether DOT staffing models are being applied without regard to context or history. And we should be asking why long-standing community events are being treated as line items rather than civic assets.

No one expects the city to ignore safety or logistics. But there is a profound difference between reasonable coordination and imposing five-figure invoices on volunteers who are trying to keep traditions alive.

Parades are not just nostalgia. They are one of the few remaining ways neighbors physically show up for one another in a city as large and fragmented as Los Angeles. When we lose them, we lose something far more important than a morning road closure.

If City Hall continues down this path, it should be honest about the outcome. Because the real question isn't whether Los Angeles can afford parades.

It's whether Los Angeles can afford to lose them.

After 41 Years... Blissful Sleep Springs to Online Format

By Lucie Volotzky

After 41 years in business, Bilssful Sleep is closing its doors — but this is not goodbye. We are moving forward and continuing online with e-commerce.

Our journey began in 1984 at the indoor swap meets, where we proudly served six different locations across Los Angeles. In 1988, we opened our first store on Sherman Way near Alabama. We were very successful there until the 1994 earthquake damaged the building — our merchandise survived, but the roof did not.

In 1995, we relocated to 6949 Topanga Canyon, where we have proudly served our community ever since.

In this store, I raised four wonderful children, and today I am blessed with six grandchildren. My four children all worked in the business. They learned responsibility, work ethic, and how to build success in life. While they have chosen different career paths and will not continue in the mattress industry, I am so proud of the people they have become.

Customer service has always been our priority. We are deeply grateful to our loyal customers and dedicated employees who helped make these 41 years possible.

Although we are sad to close this chapter, sometimes life calls for change. We will continue to serve you online, and we will keep the same phone number. I will always be available to answer your questions — because for me, serving you has never just been about selling a mattress. It's about helping you get a good night's sleep.

For the next month, we invite you to visit us for our liquidation sale. We are offering discounts up to 70% on floor samples and selected merchandise (while supplies last — first come, first served).

On March 14, we will host a farewell event in partnership with the Woodland Hills Chamber of Commerce, the Winnetka Chamber of Commerce, and the Northridge Chamber of Commerce. We would love to see you there — but you don't have to wait until March 14. Come visit us anytime during this final month.

This is not goodbye. We are moving forward and continuing online with e-commerce.

Thank you for being part of our family of blissful sleep. We look forward to seeing you and serving you — now and online.

With gratitude,

Lucie Volotzky and the Blissful Sleep family

Missing Rosenthal Tasting Room at the Beach? Visit Rosenthal Malibu Estate

Another casualty of the Palisades Fire was the closing of Rosenthal's wine tasting room on PCH in Malibu. But fans of the vintner can visit Rosenthal Malibu Estate, right off Kanan in the Malibu Hills.

Nestled far back in a canyon under towering oaks, the winery is housed in an old stable the family used in years past. You can sip and savor on the patio listening to live music while enjoying a flight, or a glass of wine or bubbly.

Regular flights include two whites and two reds, but you can mix and match to your own taste.

You're welcome to bring your own snacks, or order a beautiful and filling charcuterie box from The Fancy Host.

The gorgeous property spans 300 acres, with 30 acres under growth. The Rosenthal blends are made with grapes grown right at the estate, while the Surfrider blends also use purchased grapes.

Live music on the patio.

Rosenthal offers a selection of whites and sparkling, plus reds, rosé and orange.

The Rosenthal crafted wines include the 2022 "G Collection" Chardonnay and 2020 "G Collection" Cabernet Sauvignon, owner George Rosenthal's own blends.

There are four chardonnays to choose from at a tasting, two viogniers, and six sparkling.

A charcuterie plate at Rosenthal.

Our tasting started with the 2023 Surfrider Hang Ten Rosé, which paired well with our charcuterie box of nibbles.

Reds include a merlot, pinto, and several cabernets, plus a "G Collection" petit verdot.

For those who want something sweeter Rosenthal offers a 2020 late harvest sauvignon blanc or the Surfrider "Big Chill" blend of zinfandel, merlot, syrah and petit syrah.

Visit Rosenthal Malibu Estate and enjoy a flight yourself at Kanan Road and W Newton Canyon. Visit rosenthalestatewines.com for tasting room hours, information and booking their beautiful private party venue.

If You Have a Body, You Have a Bikini Body - Flaunt It!

By Conni Ponturo

For years, the phrase "bikini body" has carried baggage. It has been packaged with before-and-after photos, strict meal plans, punishing workouts, and the unspoken suggestion that only certain bodies qualify. But what if we rewrote the definition entirely? What if a bikini body is simply a body… wearing a bikini?

That's it. No qualifiers. No shrinking required. No "after" photo needed.

If you have a body, you already have a bikini body.

The traditional narrative tells us we must tone more, tighten more, lose more. We're encouraged to treat summer like a deadline. But our bodies are not projects waiting to be fixed. They are living, breathing homes that carry us through our lives. They deserve respect in January and in July.

Wearing a bikini can feel vulnerable. It asks us to be seen. And that vulnerability is powerful. When you choose to put on a bikini exactly as you are, you're not making a statement about perfection — you're making a permission statement. Permission to take up space. Permission to feel the sun on your skin. Permission to enjoy the water without adjusting, hiding, or apologizing.

Confidence doesn't magically arrive when you hit a certain size. It grows when you practice acceptance. It builds when you challenge the voice that says "not yet." It strengthens each time you choose joy over judgment.

If you want to get stronger, do it because strength feels good. If you want to nourish your body differently, do it because you love how energy feels. Move in ways that make you feel powerful, grounded, or playful — dance in your kitchen, lift weights, take long walks, swim in the ocean. Let your motivation come from

Seniors and Their Families Need to Plan in Advance

As our new year has begun, it offers something powerful to seniors and their families: a fresh opportunity to plan, protect, and prioritize health and happiness. While many people focus on resolutions, the healthiest decision a senor family can make is simple — make a plan. Planning ahead reduces stress, prevents crisis decisions, and creates peace of mind for everyone involved.

Consider this first step. Meeting with a professional who understands senior care. Too often, families try to manage everything on their own. They do their best, but without guidance they can miss valuable resources, benefits, safety upgrades, or care options that could improve a loved one's quality of life. A knowledgeable and trusted advisor can help evaluate needs and outline smart next steps before small issues become major problems.

A thoughtful family discussion is also essential. Gather everyone and talk honestly about the senior's current condition — physically, medically, mentally, socially, financially their daily activities. Is mobility changing? Are medications being managed properly? Is there loneliness or isolation? How are finances structured for long-term care? These conversations may feel uncomfortable but having them early avoids confusion and conflict later. Transparency builds unity and planning can keep you out of crisis mode.

Legal preparation is another cornerstone of a healthy new year. Important documents should be current and easily accessible: Trusts, Wills, Durable Power of Attorney, Health Care Directives, HIPAA authorizations, POLST forms, DNR instructions, and written end-of-life wishes. When paperwork is complete, families can focus on care and connection rather than scrambling during an emergency.

If private custodial care becomes necessary, using a licensed, bonded, and insured in-home care agency provides protection and reliability. Agencies offer trained caregivers, supervision, insurance coverage, and backup staff if someone calls out sick. That safety net gives families confidence and reduces burnout.

Gather everyone and talk honestly about the senior's current condition — physically, medically, mentally, socially, financially, and their daily activities.

Most importantly, remember that we are living longer than ever. Extra years are gifts. Staying active and engaged keeps both body and mind strong. Encourage exercise appropriate for ability, social outings, community groups, faith involvement, volunteering, hobbies, and time with grandchildren. New friendships and new interests can begin at any age.

The new year is not just about adding years to life — it is about adding life to years. With planning, communication, legal preparation, and the right support, seniors can enjoy a year filled with dignity, safety, connection, and joy.

Woodland Hills Studio Redefines Fitness by Training the Brain and Body Together

As the New Year inspires many people to focus on their health, one Woodland Hills studio is encouraging adults 50+ to think beyond traditional fitness resolutions — and start training their brains as well as their bodies.

Q4 Active is not a traditional gym. Instead of treadmills and loud music, members participate in structured small-group sessions designed to improve balance, reaction time, coordination, and cognitive function — all at the same time.

Co-Founder Phil Swain, a longtime fitness industry executive, helped create Q4 Active with a simple mission: help people stay independent and confident as they age.

"We focus on functional longevity," says Swain. "It's not just about building muscle. It's about training the brain and body together so people can move well, think clearly, and stay engaged in life."

Classes combine strength, balance, and cognitive challenges using specialized training systems that measure reaction time and dual-task processing. The program was developed in collaboration with medical professionals and is designed to be safe, progressive, and welcoming for adults at all fitness levels.

Members include active retirees looking to stay ahead of aging, individuals rebuilding confidence after physical therapy, and couples who enjoy the social connection.

Beyond exercise, Q4 Active emphasizes community. Sunday walks, educational workshops, and Ping Pong social hours help members stay engaged, connected, and having fun year-round.

People are living longer. The question is how well we live.

- Phil Swain, Q4 Active

As the healthy new year season encourages people to set meaningful goals, Q4 Active is positioning itself at the forefront of a growing movement toward preventive, brain-focused fitness.

Q4 Active is located at 6200 Variel Avenue in Woodland Hills. Visitors are welcome to observe a session or schedule an introductory visit. Call (818) 961-5353.

Florida Water Available at Native Spirit Lodge

When the explorer Juan Ponce de Leon was traveling, the local natives told him of a "Fountain of Youth" - a place where waters were scented with flowers, spices and herbs. So taken by this were the Spanish they named it "Land of Flowers" (Florida). As Christian holy men sprinkled "Holy Water" others who practiced santeria, voodoo, hoodoo, and wicca would sprinkle "Fountain of Youth" water to bring good luck, cleanse and sanctify areas and cast spells. This new so-called "Florida Water" contained many scents - mostly citrus, floral, spice, herbs and plants.

It is now used to freshen bed sheets, bath water, get rid of bad spirits and for cleansing. It seems "Holy Water" and "Florida Water" serve the same purpose, except Florida Water is scented.

Native Spirit Lodge carries Florida water. The store is located at 22559 Ventura Blvd. in Woodland Hills.

Sleep Apnea – New Treatment Available From Local Surgeon

Sleep related problems affect many Americans. The most commonly known disorder, sleep apnea, affects at least 65 million people in the United States.

There are three types of sleep apnea: Obstructive Sleep Apnea (OSA) where the throat muscles relax and block the airway, Central Sleep Apnea (CSA) where the brain fails to send proper signals to muscles that control breathing, and Complex Sleep Apnea, a combination of both OSA and CSA. There are serious medical complications from OSA which include hypertension, heart disease, arrythmias, pulmonary problems and sudden death. The common symptoms and signs of OSA are snoring, daytime sleepiness, falling asleep while watching TV or driving, and witnessed breath stops.

Treatment for sleep apnea depends on the severity, but the goal is aways the same-- keep the airway open and maintain normal oxygen levels during sleep. Some contributing factors that can affect sleep apnea include weight gain, nasal obstruction, and dental issues. Treatment options for mild apnea include lifestyle changes such as weight loss, regular exercise, sleeping on your side instead of your back, avoiding alcohol before bed time, quitting smoking and treating nasal congestion.

To make the definitive diagnosis of OSA your doctor should order a polysomnogram or sleep study. This can determine the level of severity. The first line treatment is to consider the use of CPAP which is continuous positive airway pressure masks that open the airway at sleep time by forcing air into the nose and throat to overcome the obstruction.

Dr Marc Kerner, a leading sleep apnea surgeon located in Northridge has developed cutting-edge surgical procedures for sleep apnea. These are used in patients who cannot tolerate CPAP but need some form of treatment to lower the risk of medical complications from OSA.

The goal of treatment is aways the same - keep the airway open and maintain normal oxygen levels during sleep.

Dr. Marc Kerner

Dr. Kerner is one of only a handful of surgeons in Los Angeles who perform craniofacial surgical procedures that alter the airway to overcome the obstruction during sleep, and performing multi-level airway reconstruction for sleep apnea. In addition, he offers the implantable device Inspire® which detects when your airway begins to collapse and sends gentle electrical pulses to move your tongue forward and keep your airway open to overcome the obstruction.

Each of these surgical procedures are custom tailored to the individual patient based on their anatomy and after a procedure called DISE is undertaken. The DISE is a drug-induced sleep evaluation performed as an outpatient which allows precise assessment of the levels of airway obstruction.

It's important that patients who have or think they may have sleep apnea consult a physician for proper diagnosis and treatment. For more information on Dr Kerner, please visit www.calwestent.com or call (818) 349-0600.

Don't Stress Over "Bikini Body"

care, not criticism.

The real glow-up is internal. It's learning to stand in front of the mirror and see a whole person instead of a list of improvements. It's realizing that bodies change — with age, with stress, with growth, with life — and that change is not failure. It's proof that you are living.

Summer bodies are not earned. They are revealed.

So buy the bikini. The bright one. The bold one. The one you think you'll "save for later." Wear it now. Laugh loudly. Sit without strategically placing a towel. Run into the water. Take the photo. Or don't — and simply live the moment.

A bikini body isn't a destination. It's a decision.

And the only requirement is that you show up — exactly as you are.

Helping Seniors Navigate Selling Their Home

By Scott Friedman

It's a rude awakening when a parent dies. Growing up, my father, Morton Friedman, was the biggest and strongest thing in my life. I was devastated when he passed 10 years ago. It also forced me and my mom to make some difficult decisions regarding her future.

We tried live-in help, but in the end the only thing that made sense was to sell her home of 60 years and move into a senior community.

This is where it gets interesting.

I found that she had a very difficult time using a computer, had a very difficult time reading the 150 or so pages in a transaction (contract, disclosures, etc.) and had a very difficult time remembering what we discussed.

It took time and patience to walk her through the process of selling her home, sorting her possessions, deciding what to take to a new community – and even choosing that community.

It made me look at my job in a whole new light.

Selling a property for seniors, or for children of seniors, requires more than the routine sale and opening escrow. It involves working one-on-one with the seniors, documenting the process, and then making sure they understand step-by-step what they are doing and what decisions they are making.

I have assembled an entire team of Senior Real Estate Specialists

Selling a property for seniors requires they understand step-by-step what decisions they are making.

On my team I also have a will and trust attorney, a senior escrow specialist and a member that will pack, move, set up the estate sale and discard unwanted items. We work together to make senior moves as easy and uncomplicated as they can be.

A Healthier Smile Through Modern Dentistry

Advanced technology is making dental care faster, more comfortable, and more effective.

Advances in dental technology are transforming the way patients experience oral care. Today's dental practices focus not only on treating problems but also on preventing them, through early diagnosis, modern techniques, and personalized treatment planning.

At Modern Age Dentistry in West Hills, Dr. Alistair Saeghi combines decades of experience with state-of-the-art dental technology to provide comprehensive care for patients of all ages. The practice offers a wide range of services, from preventive and family dentistry to cosmetic and advanced restorative treatments, all performed in-house for greater convenience and continuity of care.

Modern Age Dentistry incorporates advanced dental technology designed to improve both precision and patient comfort. From digital treatment planning to efficient restorative procedures, these innovations allow the dental team to provide care that is more comfortable, accurate, and convenient for patients.

The practice also utilizes advanced technology to provide same-day crowns, allowing patients to restore damaged teeth in a single appointment. With digital scanning and computer-guided design, a custom crown can be created and placed during the same visit, eliminating the need for temporary crowns and multiple appointments.

For patients with missing or failing teeth, the practice offers advanced implant solutions. Single dental implants can replace individual missing teeth while preserving surrounding bone and restoring natural function. For patients requiring a full arch restoration, All-on-Four implant treatment allows an entire set of teeth to be supported by just four implants, providing a stable and long-lasting solution.

Modern Age Dentistry even has a friendly therapy dog who helps create a relaxed and welcoming environment for patients who may feel anxious about dental visits.

- Dr. Alistair Saeghi

Because many services are performed on-site, patients can often complete most treatments in one location without the need for outside referrals. Patient comfort is also a priority. Modern Age Dentistry even has a friendly therapy dog who helps create a relaxed and welcoming environment for patients who may feel anxious about dental visits.

By combining advanced technology, comprehensive in-house services, and a compassionate approach to care, Modern Age Dentistry helps patients maintain healthy, confident smiles for years to come.

Modern Age Dentistry is currently offering an offer for new patients - a comprehensive exam and digital X-rays for $99 (regularly $350).

Sepulveda Basin's Newest Fire Prevention Fighters? Goats!

In an effort to combat fires that frequently plague the area, the Sepulveda Basin Wildlife Reserve welcomed some new, albeit temporary, residents last week. Over 1,000 goats were released on 35 acres to feast on brush and invasive plants in order to mitigate fire-fighting efforts and encourage further growth of native plants.

Spearheaded by multiple organizations including the San Fernando Valley Audubon Society, Mayor Karen Bass' office, the City of Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Councilmember Padilla's office and local LAFD stations, this pilot project aims to safely clear hard to access areas in a sustainable way.

The idea initially struck in 2020, but navigating permission from multiple departments and delaying start dates thanks to Mother Nature took time and the goats have now been set loose!

Mike Choi of Fire Grazers Inc. provided the "trip" or group of goats whose grazing has been proven to be an ecologically-sound, cost effective and efficient means of fire-brush clearance. They currently occupy the field near the Apollo XI Model Airplane facility, adjacent to the wildlife reserve.

The goats (all of which are female!) will be allowed to graze for a few weeks before the official start of birding season, around March 15, when they will then be removed from the basin. An electric fence keeps them in a designated area, where a herding dog and a goat herder also reside to watch the trip and keep predators and intruders away.

The Army Corps of Engineers granted permission and a Right of Entry for Fire Grazers to occupy the space, while the city paid for a biological survey of the land before the goats' arrival. The funding for the goats themselves came from the San Fernando Audubon Society but member Pat Bates stresses, "it's thanks to the support and push of the mayor's office who went above and beyond or this wouldn't have happened."

If the pilot program proves successful, there is the hope to bring the goats back in mid-July in addition to other mitigation offerings. As locals can attest, fire has been an ever-constant threat in the basin and any efforts to reduce those threats is welcome.

Katheryn Barton, President of San Fernando Valley Audubon Society, told Valley News Group that, "SFV Audubon is committed to keeping our parks and reserves safe for wildlife as well as residents."

Sherman Oaks Landscaping

I started my own business back in 1967 by going around to neighbors houses when I was seven years old and asking them if they needed their lawn cut or their leaves cleaned up. I started a gardening route in junior high and I hired many of my friends to assist me throughout the years. In 1985 I was cited for contracting without a license and they said I could either pay a $2500 fine or get my contractors license, so I got my license. In 1994 we had earthquake in Northridge California, lots of walls fell down and I got in trouble again for contracting without a masonry license, so I went and got the masonry license. Now I have a C 27 and a C 29. I have a wonderful crew that's been with me over 20 years, I'm good to them and they're good to me. I have nothing but compliments about the way my crew shows respect to our clients. I can do complete landscaping jobs, hard scape, waterfalls, Barbecues, fire pits, Koi ponds, Lawn, Sprinklers, Synthetic grass and everything in between.

The constellation Orion the Hunter

Nighttrek Report: What to See in the March Sky

By Neill Simmons

The whole month of March brings us a brilliant Jupiter in all its glory. Look straight up to see the king of all planets after sunset. Four of Jupiter's 95 known moons are visible through binoculars. These four moons - Io, Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto were discovered by Galileo in 1610, which provided early evidence for a sun-centered solar system.

On March 8, a Venus and Saturn conjunction will occur, with the two planets appearing very close together in the low western sky shortly after sunset. A conjunction occurs when celestial objects appear close to each other in the sky. This is an optical illusion caused by the observer's perspective since the objects are usually millions of miles apart. Every night from now until September, Venus will be getting brighter and brighter each evening. Look west.

One of our favorite constellations, Orion the Hunter, will be shining in the west. Orion is best found by locating its "belt"made up of three bright, evenly spaced stars in a straight line. Look for the reddish star Betelgeuse which is Orion's shoulder and the blue star Rigel which is his foot, to identify the full hunter constellation. In addition, look to the left of Orion to find the brightest star in the sky, Sirius, which is in the constellation Canis Major.

In March, the Big Dipper is a prominent feature of the spring night sky. Look northeast during early evening. It is now oriented "upside down" or standing on its handle. The Big Dipper is not a constellation. It is an asterism, which is a recognizable pattern of stars that is part of a larger constellation, Ursa Major. The most critical function of the Big Dipper is its role as a pointer to Polaris, the North Star. Polaris sits almost exactly above the North Pole. Once you find it, you will know which was is north, and consequently, east, west, and south.

When Elon Musk founded SpaceX his dream was to set up a colony on Mars. A lofty goal, mostly because we've really only sent rovers to take pictures of Mars. But now Musk wants SpaceX to change gears and instead colonize the moon. According to Musk, a city on the moon would take about 10 years to build. Don't book your ticket just yet!

Orion is best found by locating its "belt" made up of three bright, evenly spaced stars in a straight line.

Mark your calendars! On Friday, March 13, at 7 pm, the Ventura Country Astronomical Society (VCAS) will host a free and open to the public lecture. The guest speaker will be Sarah Elizabeth McCandless, Navigation Engineer at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. It will be held at the Hillcrest Center for the Arts in Thousand Oaks.

When not stargazing, Neill Simmons, is an Investment Executive with LPL Financial in Woodland Hills. If you have any astronomy or financial questions, he may be reached at (818) 936-2626 or emailed at: neill.simmons@lpl.com.
